Santo Domingo's New Tariff Law. Consul Grimke, at Santo Domingo, has ent to the State Department a translation of a new tariff law which went into effect July 1. This provides for a 3 per cent addition to all taxes laid on imports to the Dominican republic. The additional tax is to be maintaired separately from other taxes and intrusted to the consul of the King of the Netherlands, or by order of the executive to a consul of any other friendly nation until the payment of the obligation for which it was levied. Consul Grimke says the new tax is intended to discharge certain French claims against the republic. of a new tariff law which went into effect

er City of Richmond last night while she was making her way in the direction of this city. That there was not a serious riot is not the fault of those who participated in the trouble. The difficulty originated in the bar room, and started between the colored man behind the bar and a customer named Taylor. Like every other story, there are be fully heard if the case ever comes to trial in a court of competent jurisdiction. The man Taylor was put in the hold, but be remained there only a few minutes, for a crowd, alleged to have been led by James A. Taliaferro, the lawyer and real estate man at 503 E street, were with the prisoner, and at their carnest solicitation Taylor kicked a panel from a door, so it is claimed, and then he was rescued. As already stated, the affair started in the bar room, when Taylor went in and bought beer. There was some question about paying for the beer raised by the bartender, and it is alleged that the colored man used insulting language. This Taylor resented by using force, and the bartender retorted by using a heavy beer mallet. Then the fight was on and the deck hands and others assisted in dropping Taylor out of sight, and it was claimed that he fell through into the hold with such force that he was severely shaken up. man at 503 E street, were with the prisoner,

There were others there and all seemed of the same opinion chief. Gen. Ellis was directed by the union to order the committee appointed to urge upon Congress the necessity for transferring the pension office to the War Department, and other matters to call upon the committee of pensions of the House and Senate, and present to those bodies their views in reference to the transfer of the pension office, and to prepare a bill somewhat on the lines of the service pension bill, which would result, if passed, in doing away with the pension agencies, an officer being detailed from the retired list of the regular army not higher than the rank of captain, who would be assigned to the various congressional districts of the country, and who would muster the pensioners for there were cries of "Hang him" and "Kill him" when Special Officer McCauley was getting Taylor in the hold.

A speech was made by the young lawyer, in which he called upon the passengers to liberate Taylor. He denounced the action of the steamboat men, and his hearers or the steamboat men, and his hearers sancticned every word he said. While he was thus engaged the prisoner was liberated and even after that Taliaferro continued his speech.

Gen. Ellis has instructed his deputy commander in this city to transmit a copy of the resolutions referring to Col. Ainsworth and Public Printer Benedict to those gentlemen; also a copy of the resolution referring to Gen. Smith to Mrs. Smith.

The veterans were greatly pleased with the character of their reception at Lima, nearly every house of the town, whether of the rich or of their feed of the care for the cocasion. An impressive feature of the creemonies of the union was one connected with the chaplain's chair, which had been occupied by the late Gen. Green Clay Smith. This chair was decorated with a suitable floral emblem in memory of the

Under the circumstances the defendant was forced to have the case disposed of in some way or go to jail, and so he decided to waive an examination.

The Boat Captain's Story.

Capt. Posey and Special Watchman Mc-Cauley were present, and they told the sioner of the case as they understood it. When the trouble started Capt. Posey was at dinner, and he went out to quell the disturbance. Taliaferro, he said, made threats that he would shoot, and put his hand behind him, as if he intended to nis hand benind him, as it he intended to draw a pistol.

McCauley followed the captain, telling briefly of what happened.

day morning when a line of electric cars loaded down with railroad men stopped in front of Mr. Schoepf's house. The visitors massed themselves in front and called for Mr. Schoepf. When he appeared, Mr. H. K. Gray, secretary and treasurer of the roads, made a neat address, and presented Mr. Schoepf with a handsomely bound book containing resolutions which had been passed and signed by all the officials and employes of the two systems, and a massive solid silver bowl and tray.

The resolutions, which were read, recited the regret the men felt at the departure of Mr. Schoepf from the general management of the two companies and stated "that we take this opportunity to assure Mr. Schoepf of our personal affection for him as a man, our admiration for his steady integrity of purpose and our gratitude for his unfaltering championship of our best interests; that we recognize the wisdom of his management and applaud the fairness and discrimination with which he exercised the invortant duties confided to him and agement and applaud the fairness and dis-crimination with which he exercised the important duties confided to him, and especially his eminent justice in the main-tenance of the discipline necessary to the proper management of the roads." They also congratulated the owners of the new electric road between Baltimore and Wash-ington, of which Mr. Schoepf has become ington, of which Mr. Schoepf has become the general manager, upon securing the services of one "whose eminent accomplishments as an engineer, unrivaled spirit of progress, unceasing vigor and application, and splendidly balanced judgment, wise foresight and keen discernment equip him in a superlative degree to successfully administer the important matters devoted to his care."

o his care. Mr. Schoepf responded in a few words, in which he told the gathering that it was to the loyalty and efforts of those present that his success as general manager had been due. He then shook each caller by the hand and thanked him personally. The Aid of Congress Amplifies It Facilities and a Number of Stn dents Enjoy Its Privileges

Dr. J. E. Rankin, president of the board of trustees of Howard University, today filed with the Secretary of the Interior the ananual report of the board on the conduct of the institution during the year past.

The report states that the year has been one of perfect harmony and unity, not a single case of discipline having been re ported to the faculty. The 587 students come from forty-two different states and from the West Indies and Central America. In the theological department, sup-ported by the American Missionary Association, there have been thirty-nine students, of whom six have graduated. In the medical department there have been 200 students, including thirteen pharmaceutical, thirteen dental and fifty-five train-

The trustees express their grateful recognition of the generosity of Congress in assuming the whole support of the law school, and they announce that so long as this is the case the tuition shall be free.

The amount appropriated for the university this year was $36,500. The trustees ask a like amount for the ensuing year. ask a like amount for the ensuing year and $1,000 additional for improving the law

The latter feature is due to the work undertaken by Dr. D. H. Williams of the Freedmen's Hospital. In the law department, of which the United States this year undertakes the entire support, there have been thirty-three students, with fifteen graduates and four post-graduates. Lectures are expected from Justices Harlan and Gray. Judge S. E. Baldwin of Conrecticut has during the year rendered great assistance by a course of lectures. The cellege department had thirty-three students, the preparatory ninety-two and the normal one hundred and eighty-eight. In all departments good work has been the rule of the year. A large number of students received instruction in music, carpentry, tinning, printing, bookbinding and sewing. Through the generosity of Mr. Andrew Langdon of Buffalo, N. Y., prizes were given in several of the manual departments. Tuition is required only in the medical department. Room rent in all the departments is $15 a year and board $8 a month.

departments is $15 a year and board $8 a month.

In 'all the academic departments aid is given all students. The year witnessed the completion of the Andrew E. Rankin memorial chapel, the gift of Mrs. Andrew E. Rankin, now Mrs. H. O. Cushman of Boston, and Mr. J. H. Stickney of Baltimore, each of whom gave $5,000 for the purpose.

The trustees have voted $7,500 the present year for improving the facilities of the medical department, the principal feature desired being sufficient lecture rooms. Of the $20,500 granted by Congress, $23,000 has been used for salaries of officers, teachers and employes. There was spent for tools, materials and expenses for the industrial department $3,000; for the library, $1,300, including $1,000 for the law library; for the laboratory, $1,000, and for improvement of grounds, $500.

The trustees express their grateful recognition.
